Your “me time” doesn’t need to be about skincare products. It can be also an activity in a place that feels like home, a place that helps us to relax after a busy day, such as the living room. But, to be part of your calming ritual, it is essential to be designed perfectly for that purpose, even if you just need to take a few minutes to hit pause.

And this gorgeous living room will provide you with the power to inspire you endlessly. This smooth aesthetic could be only possible with the right details: comforting curvature, high-quality materials and a colour palette inspired by nature. All these features, when combined, make everything look effortlessly soothing while a joy edit comes into the room to increase your levels of serotonin.
